

ASIA 296

Asian Studies Lab

Tues | 4:30 - 5:30 PM

This course is designed to provide students with focused training in the execution of the journal publication project, Rice Asian Studies Review, which is a student-run journal published annually from the Department of Transnational Asian Studies. This lab training will enable students to identify relevant themes in Asian Studies today and organize the rigorous collective vetting process, seeking external reviews and strategically planning for the effective publication (both online and print) that will make an impactful intervention in the field of Asian Studies.

Asian Studies majors only
